

We started the hunt for a new pup by asking around at local gun clubs, sport shops, and searching the internet, which lead us to Ed and Emily Kerr. Being a former lab owner, this was going to be our first pointing dog. Ed answered all of our questions, and showed us his dogs and how they performed. Ed's dogs are not just put together to make pups, but to make the best pups possible for a better breed. After visiting and seeing Ed's dogs perform, we were committed to purchasing our dog, Jack. We sent Jack to Ed's 2 week puppy school and to the 8 week adult field class, and never once worried about him. We stopped in to visit and get updates on Jack's progress, and Ed gladly showed us what Jack had learned. As for Ed and Emily, you won't find two better people to purchase a pup from. They truly and honestly try to give you the best pup possible from start to finish. Yes, I will purchase my next pup from Ed and Emily because they truly care and it shows. Everyone who meets Jack compliments us on his behavior and attitude, which I credit to Ed and Emily and all the human contact the pups received in their first 8 weeks of life, as well as, Ed's thorough training program.
